

Katinka de Balogh is of Dutch and Hungarian origins and grew up in Latin-American. She studied veterinary medicine in Berlin and Munich and graduated and obtained her doctorate in tropical parasitology from the Tropical Institute of the University of Munich in 1984. Later she specialised in tropical animal production and health in France and in Veterinary Public Health (VPH) in the Netherlands. After a short career as a zoo veterinarian in the Rotterdam Zoo she moved to Africa where he worked for 9 years initially as a district veterinary officer in rural Zambia and later as lecturer at the veterinary faculties of Lusaka, Zambia and Maputo, Mozambique.

Thereafter she worked for 5 years at the Utrecht veterinary faculty in the Netherlands as lecturer and international project coordinator. In the late 80's she had spent two years as a young professional at the Veterinary Public Health Unit of the World Health Organization (WHO) in Geneva. In 2002 she started working at the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) in Rome, Italy in the Pro-poor Livestock Policy Facility (PPLPF) and after the start of the highly pathogenic avian influenza global outbreaks as coordinator for avian influenza projects and as response manager of the newly created Crisis Management Centre of FAO.

Presently she leads the global Veterinary Public Health activities of FAO where every day she uses at least 5 of her 7 languages.
